ABSTRACT

The aim of this paper is to explore the authentic leadership styles of an entrepreneur and its impact on employee's commitment and satisfaction. By using the authentic leadership model, this study seeks to carry out a tentative test of the connection among employees' awareness of the business creator as an authentic leader and the employees' attitudes. Findings suggest that employee's opinion towards authentic leadership serves as the intoxicating analyst of employee job satisfaction and organizational commitment.

1. Introduction

Leadership is essentially from organizational sciences, which means how leader behaves in the organization, how to inspire their employees and their method of cooperation with conditions in the organization and how they can make major changes in organization (Bass, 1990). Some researchers comprise that sometimes leadership may not be important and sometimes leadership experts anticipate that leadership make a new design in the minds of supporters who try to occupy leadership roles.

Founders of new business enterprise (SME) have established and supported a new business enterprise, which not only builds vision and finance but also converts that vision and finance into successful and compatible business. Most researchers argued that organizational leaders play essential role. The founders of business are accountable for the availability of goods and services and for creation of new opportunities (Chandler & Hanks, 1994).
